Our whales are in trouble!
Make your voice heard!

As a not-for-profit organization, the Canadian Wildlife Federation has limited resources to get the

MARINE ACTION PLAN PETITION

into the hands of concerned Canadians such as yourself!

Our goal is to reach over 1,000,000 households with this petition. Our resources will only get us part of the way there.

Did you know?

Canada's oceans have

- 33 species of whales and dolphins
- 10 species of seals, sea lions and walruses
- 4 species of marine turtles
- 1 type of sea otter

Approximately 20 of these species are in danger of extinction!

Specifically, the North Atlantic Right Whale is considered one of the most endangered of all large whale species. Threats such as vessel strikes and entanglement have caused their numbers to diminish year after year and have reduced the number of breeding females.

Year	Estimated Number of North Atlantic Right Whales
2015	458
2016	411
2018	409

In 2019, 10 North Atlantic Right Whales were killed. While there have been 10 calves born in 2020, one is already presumed dead as a result of a vessel strike.
